

Indiana Folk Music Society

Dear Friend,

The 48th Annual Eagle Creek Folk Festival, hosted by the Indiana Folk Music Society, will be taking place at the Beach Shelter in beautiful Eagle Creek Park, Indianapolis, Indiana, on Saturday, September 16, 2023. We are writing to solicit your help to fund this long-running, free folk festival. This event is a celebration of folk and traditional American music that includes paid performances by invited guests alongside performances by Society members. An assortment of music workshops and jamming makes this an event for the whole family. The Festival has attracted 500-1000 music lovers from across central Indiana and surrounding areas in past years.

How does your gift help? The Folk Music Society operates exclusively as a charitable and educational 501(c)(3) nonprofit corporation with the mission of promoting and perpetuating the traditions of American folk music. Your gift will help the Society achieve its mission by making this a successful event. In particular, we need help to offset expenses incurred for the use of park facilities, paid performers, staging, and miscellaneous other costs associated with making this event possible. If financial sponsorship is not a possibility, in-kind gifts of products or services for drawings or auction would be welcome.

What we will do for you: As a thank you for your generous support, we will be happy to recognize you for the value of your gift at the level of your choice as noted on the following pages. See the attached list of four sponsorship levels to find the one with which you are most comfortable. Your info/logo/media will be on display to festival attendees as described and will be announced repeatedly throughout the weekend by the festival emcee. Please help us in this endeavor to bring the gift of folk music to fellow Hoosiers.

We appreciate your willingness to consider supporting the Indiana Folk Music Society and look forward to hearing from you soon.
